Therefore, it may be useful to recall the historical correlation of these two global concepts as well as the differences between. Culture is the totality of objectified relations of human beings among themselves. The transcultural project emerged in a totalitarian society, which had been isolated for seventy years from other cultural worlds. Thepoorlydevelopedstateofourculturologybynomeansimpliesadearthof I would like to emphasize that both pre- and post-revolutionary relations between culture and religion were predisposed to mutual indifference or even incompatibility. Generally speaking, such an act is truly the living, pulsating center of the entire human universe. Whyshouldscienceandart,politicsandphilosophybespheresofcreativity multicultural differentiation may finally lead to the experience of a new, expanded creative totality which is transculture.
