As a child, I walked to school past towering lilacs, white, lavender, pink. There is no preaching in this novel, only the story of a life that gives beauty and a faith that grows and deepens through the years. The Prisoner in the Castle. It is historically accurate in depicting various events which occurred in Hulda's life from deaths to floods and, as acknowledged by the author, many of the characters in the story are composites of actual individuals who graced Hulda's life over her 97 years on this earth. We are here to live, to serve, to trust, to create out of our longings. So this is a book where some facts are known and a story is built around those facts. Hulda was a woman of faith and trust in God. I was even more captivated when I realized the story was based on a real woman, whose lilac gardens and home are open to the public.
